Standard Products

Until Virginia products are as good if not better than her competitors, as reliable or more so than theirs, they cannot hope to become outstanding successful as compared to other states, regardless of the system of marketing that is employed. This is the opinion held by G. S. Ralston of the Eastern Shore Produce Exchange, who has just prepared a report for the Virginia Agricultural Advisory Council.

Balanced farming is advocated by Mr. Ralston as a means of improving methods of distribution. He says: "One hundred per cent, high grade production and standardization alone would not be enough. If all the farmers by some miracle standardize crop production, and at the same time not limit production, the result would not give them the doubtful satisfaction of a duty well done but without profit."

Effective marketing, a lessening in the cost of production and a more nearly self-supporting farm can be brought about by the standardization of crops to uniform standards. He continues: "The main issue involved in standardization does not lie in making the trade understand its value. The difficulty lies in procuring standardized goods; in enlisting the understanding and active support of the farmers so that he will earnestly work to that vision.

"Should Virginia farmers realize what self-help they themselves could give; should they take advantage of what they can do and produce a reasonable acreage of fine quality goods well standardized, the distribution problem would in a large measure be solved."

Releif Craved

Four changes in taxation of Virginia farmers are suggested by W. E. Garnett, Department of Rural Sociology Virginia Polytechnic Institute, as a means of lowering the cost of farm products.

The first of these is a reduction or the elimination altogether of taxes od wooden land, with a substitution therefore of a severance tax when trees are cut. In explanation Mr. Garnett says: "About 7,000,000 acres, or approximately one third of the farm lands of the state are in woods. Such a change would not only encourage the growth of timber but would also help to relelve the farm tax burden on property which for a time may not be producing any income."

Other changes suggested are: Exemption from taxation of a certain limited portion of farm property up to a given valuation, which may be covered by mortgage indebtedness.

An increase in the proportion of state support of rural schools and other local institutions.

An increase in taxes on luxuries and other lines of endeavor most able to bear it and which cannot readily pass the tax back to the farmers.

An increase in the proportion of state support of schools would make it possible to reduce local taxes without institutions suffering, while the increase of taxes on luxuries would produce the state funds called for in the above section, according to Mr. Garnett.

In closing he says: "In making the several comparisons between urban and rural conditions, and advocation that more taxes be shifted to city industries, I have no desire to set country against city. All I am urging for is equality between the two, a thing we do not have at present.

Tucker Appreciated

(From Lexington Gazette)

Harry St. George Tucker, Virginia's representative from the 10th Congressional district in the halls of the national legislature, and his constitutional complex were given a big puff recently in the columns of the Atlantic Constitutional.

Sam W. Small, writing in his columns of "Looking and Listening," took occasion to pay the Virginia congressman a tribute while commenting upon the legal profession of Georgia, its recent systems of jurisprudence and a recent annual convention of the Georgia Bar association.

Under the sub-head, "Sisian Stars of the Session," these words came from the columist's pen:

"Unless I should set out to write a biographical cyclopedia of the men of mark among Georgia lawyers, and which would make a formidable volume, I cannot venture to particularize any of them by partiality. Here I only mention those who contributed light and flavor to an unusually delightful and profitable occasion.

"Primus inter pares, of course, was Congressman Harry St. George Tucker, as fine an exemplar of the F. F. V.'s as ever came down from the Old Dominion. He delivered a studied and scholarly rebuttal of the interpretation given by Judge Story to the "general welfare" clause of the federal constitution. Who else should give a more reasoned and reliable judgment of what the fathers meant when they used that phrase in the constitution, than this same Harry St. George Tucker?

"His forebears were among those who framed the immortal document. A generation of lawyers, many of whom rose to ums of statemanship, learned their lessons in constitutional law from this Tucker's grand father Harry St. George Tucker, at the University of Virginia, nearly a century ago. The Tucker's father, John Randolph Tucker, was one of the great Democrats and congressmen of our past Civil war era, and the author of a great constitutional treatise.

"Congressman Tucker's paper was heard with profound interest and will be studied by all who heard it when it appears in full in the report of the annual meeting."

Rev. Sam W. Small, the great prohibition evangelist who in past years has been a strong opponent of Mr. Tucker's political ambitions, has now changed his opposition to approval.

FLYING IS FELT IN ARCHITECTURE

Roofs and Skylines Are to Be More Pleasing.

Washington.—Architecture is another profession that is being influenced by the great development of aviation. This is exemplified by the design prepared by Frank R. McMillan, superintendent of the division of post office quarters and engineering, for the proposed new Chicago post office, which contemplates a great flat roof, 320 feet wide and 800 feet long.

The question of architectural styles, like all natural evolution, is a slow process following the improved needs of growing intelligence. In America architecture is less than three hundred years old. In this period it has progressed from the log cabin to our modern monumental buildings. It took 1,000 years to produce the Egyptian temple, 500 years to build the Greek temples and 300 years to erect imperial Rome. And never were the demands and requirements as many as today. In materials, in structure and in purpose, the task of the architect is increasingly gigantic. And now the architect's purpose is to be changed if not dominated by our getting into the air.

Not just for the landing spaces are modern cities concerned. An artistic view from the air is demanded. German architects are studying this matter with the intention of recommending improvements in the aspect from the bird's eye.

Therefore we may expect roof gardens. Also we may not be surprised to see some of the billboards that line the automobile trails go up and die down as many of the business houses. Atlanta tells the flying world that it is "Atlanta" by locating it cut on top

Our future cities will present an entirely different skyline, experts say. Such Gothic buildings as the Woolworth skyscraper and those of Chicago university with points and spikes and towers discording to aviators probably will disappear.

Lieut. Barni Baldwin, who piloted the giant "America" through hours of storm and fog over France looking for a place to come down, said in answer to those who were surprised that he could see no Eiffel tower: "No, I did not want to see it. I was mighty glad that I did not see it."

Indians Enjoyed Rolling Bones, Relics Indicate

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Historians may see chronicle the fact that the American Indians of old rolled dice, gambled, and used rugs and powder but the large Indian collection of Edward Snow, local collector, bears witness that they did.

Snow has one of the largest Indian collections in the city, particularly in regard to stone relics, some rare, aged, and of historical significance.

Among the thousand or more items in his collection are Indian gambling stones used in the manner almost identical to dice.

Snow also exhibits stones, thin and round, which speculation would have as Indian poker chips. On this order there are also larger stones, apparently used for lagging for a line, much in the manner of "pitching pennies," or as target for spears.

Snow's oldest relics date back four centuries. The exhibit as it now is was collected from states. It includes arrowheads, hatchets, spears, knives, scrapes, bone, grain mortars, and bits of pottery.

The collection also harbors a Mexican spearhead dug from the walls of the Alamo after its fall, as well as a number of guns from past conflicts.

Falls 19,000 Feet Before Parachute Opens; Lives

Paris.—Dropping 19,000 feet from a falling airplane and yet living to tell the tale was the experience of a French pilot, Emile Van Laere. An airplane which he was testing near Beaumont sur Oise in the forest of Carnelle, began to fall from a height of 7,000 meters, it is said. The parachute did not open until he was a thousand feet from the ground. Although somewhat stunned from his descent, Van Laere was uninjured.

Tuberculosis Spreads to Millions in Russia

Lentograd.—Malaria, tuberculosis and trachoma are ravishing Soviet Russia, it is stated by Dr. W. Horsley Gantt, a young physician of Charlottesville, Pa., who has just completed a three months' work on health and sanitary conditions in Russia. Doctor Gantt says there are now 4,000,000 cases of malaria within the Soviet union, which is four times the number before the war. The number of persons affected with tuberculosis runs into the millions, and the disease is steadily increasing. More than half a million Russians are suffering from trachoma, Doctor Gantt finds, while in the United States there are only 1,000 cases.

U. S. Prepares to Sell Uniforms to Veterans

Washington.—Former soldiers who wish to treasure uniforms like those which they wore in the service of their country soon will be able to purchase them from the War department.

Some five million persons, including former army nurses, are eligible to purchase the uniforms under an act of the last congress and will be advised within the next two months by the War department about their distribution.

For a few dollars the veteran will be able to assemble a complete uniform, with items ranging from discharge chevrons at 3 cents to wooden blouses at $5.91, to overcoats at $9.25. The overseas cap, a product of the World war, will be sold for $1.15, the campaign hat going at $2.33. Noncommissioned officers' chevrons will cost $1.50 under the new plan.

Church Survey

The Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian Sunday School of Appomattox will send out fifteen teams of two and three each Sunday afternoon, September 4, to make a thorough religious survey or census of Appomattox and surrounding territory. The purpose of the survey is to determine what percentage of the people of the community attend Sunday School and to secure, if possible, the enrollment and attendance of every man, woman, boy and girl at some Sunday School. A family card will be used on one side of which will be recorded the names of the parents with their church and Sunday school preferences and on the opposite side will be recorded the names of their children with their church and Sunday school preferences together with the ages of all those under sixteen years. Each pastor and superintendent will then be given a copy of all those expressing preference for his church or Sunday school or denomination and a follow-up system will be devised by which it is hoped to bring every one into some Sunday school. As far as possible, the teams will consist of three members, a Baptist, a Methodist and a Presbyterian and the survey will be made between the hours of 2 and 5 o'clock. All team members are requested to meet at Liberty Church promptly at 2 o'clock for assignment, etc. This movement is of vital importance to the moral and religious welfare of the community. The aim will be to do a thorough piece of work and the hearty co-operation of all is solicited. Now, for "a long pull, a strong pull and a pull all together."

25,000,000 boys and girls in America are receiving no religious instructions and about 20,000,000 more receive less than one hour of religious instruction each week. How does Appomattox rank with other communitie in this connection? The survey will tell.

Benjaman Ferguson

Benjaman Julian Ferguson, age 20, died Sunday morning at the home of his sister, Mrs. R. E. Woolridge. He was sick only a few days, death resulting from abcess of the braid, and spinal menegitis. All was done for him that loving hands could do, but the Lord knew best. He was taken to Lynchburg hospital where six doctors were summoned but no operation was made. He was then brought back to the home of his sister, where he died.

Julian was a faithful member of New Hope Church. He accepted Christ at an early age, and had been a faithful christian up until his death. Funeral services were conducted by his pastor, Rev. Burnette, where he was laid to rest. A large crowd of people attended the burial and the floral offerings were many and beautiful. The pallbearers were his brothers and near relatives. The flower girls were his near relatives and frien.ds.

Julian is survived by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. B. M Ferguson; six sisters, Mrs. C. J. Paulette, Mrs. R. E. Woolridge, Mrs. W. C. Doss, Della and Eva Ferguson; four brothers, Harry, Sam, Conner and Clyde Ferguson. He is gone but not forgotten.

A man without a SAVINGS ACCOUNT is like a boat without an oar ---like a ship without a sail---drifting about aimlessly, liable any minute to be dashed upon rocks of financial destruction.

Manny happy and successful voyages through life have hinged upon that one little thing---

A SAVINGS ACCOUNT

We would like to open one up in your name.

This is the new Goodyear Tire, announced by its makers as "The Greatest Tire in the World."

After tests and close inspection, we are ready to back up that statement.

A KNOCK-OUT!

We know a champion when we see one. And this new-type All-Weather Tread Goodyear Balloon, brand-new 1927 model, is a knock-out!

For longer wear, for increased safety, better traction, more peace-of-mind, and long slow wear—this is the tire you want.

Come in, see it, be tire-wise. Know why more people ride on Goodyear Tires than any other kind.
